Run 1940 – DV8's Up Hill Dash

The pack assembled in a lovely green park in the middle of Stratford, right next to a child's playground with swings, slippery dips and all the usual child's play equipment. While Jug Head, Layback and other hashers were totally absorbed in played on the play equipment, at the amusement of the harriers, the other athletes considered the run and did serious stretching of the drink arm in anticipation of a grueling run.

Some problems were encountered getting the harriers off the play equipment and eventually they were convinced and enticed with chocolate/beer to come down and participate in the run, and were not disappointed in the resulting run set by the lovely (and unsuccessful Labor candidate) DV8. (Labor's DV8 Impersonator Sharryn Howes has shrugged of Entsch's declaration of victory, saying " ... there are many votes still to be counted — and there are many steps to take before the On On"... Ed).

While the run started on the flat bike path along the railway it turned into a hill climb along darkened roads and tracks. We wound up and down the Stratford byways and paths to have a drink stop up the top of some road which was suspected to be very close to the Blue Arrow. The walkers completed a few more kilometres than the runners thanks to Modnoc's memory and inability to read the chalk marks on the trail (Sorry Modnoc I forgot it was a false trail).

It was observed that Jug Head and most of the runners took a shortcut and went back to the keg early as they wanted to have the first selection of the playground equipment.

After a couple of drinks and a lot of banter between the pack the circle was about to start until someone wanted to get into their vehicle. Eventually it was discovered the DV8 had given all the car keys to her children to play with, as they could not get onto the play equipment, and had taken them home when their father picked them up.

So after a quick charge to DV8 and a run report she headed off the get the keys and report into the Stratford Labor headquarters to see how she was fairing in the latest political poll— (At that moment in time ... she had the potential to be successful ... Ed).

The circle continued with the usual fabricated chargers and occasional truths. Accusations and slander was passed amongst until it was decided enough was enough and the food waited to be eaten.

After consuming most of the food the pack retired for a few more drinks until the cold and wind finally forced us home.

Good run and heaps of fun.

Hash Flashback ...

Pythagorarse's Winter Solstice Run no 1939

A pensive Throng of Hashers (Not sure what the collective noun for a group of Hasher's is) assembled at the Japanese Memorial Garden in Grafton Street at the site of what was the Civic Theatre. Stroker called the assembled throng to order on the stroke of Six Bells and handed over the floor to Pythagorarse who then outlined the basics of the round the CBD jaunt. Yes there would be a drink stop he said pointing to his well provisioned bicycle and No you would not need torches. That was the first lie! The pack set off and was soon split due to the ongoing CBD revamp. This was compounded by Mona who thought he sensed a short cut only to discover it was a hasher foolishly calling on, in what turned out to be a false trail. He was followed by Modnoc & DV8 on his excursion which led to all three being totally lost and charged in the circle. Most made it to the drink stop at the northern finger of the Marina, The hare had graciously moved closer to the Outrigger Club after the Runners had gone through to accommodate the walkers. All made it back to the Venue one way or another and were treated to some fine nibbles which include Pies, Sausages rolls & Biscuits, Dip and Cheese. 49er at this point showed us her party trick which involved opening a packet of Grain-waves by popping it between her hands only to have the bottom of the packet split open and deposit the contents on the floor despite a valiant effort by Extractit in diving between her legs to catch them. The full moon made a dramatic entrance during the nibbles & pre-circle drinks which prompted a few howls from some hashers.

The circle was called to order and a run report was orated by Wiggles who finished by giving a score of 7/10 much to the jeers & groans of the pack. Moana warbled a song for the Hare, Charges were then laid; Piss Pot for being a Virgin runner, Extractit for running, Donno & Snyce for have a domestic, Mona & MoFo for not following trail & leading Modnoc & DV8 astray, Flatulance, Layback & Royal T for some reason or other & 49er for her lack of packet opening skills and hence not relieving the crown of Domestic Goddess from Nigella Lawson. The shirt was awarded to Extractit by Nico who joined her in a drink for trying to re-name her Extratit.

All were serenaded by the rest of the pack in a stirring rendition of Sweet Chariot. Royal T told a joke that was transcribed from hieroglyphs, and the 1950 run was announced as 23-25 Sept inclusive.

 Son: 'But mum, I was sitting on daddy's lap.'
