Run 1968 – Peckers’ Pluvial Prance !

The 1968th run of Trinity Hash House Harriers was set and hosted by Pecker and did him credit on most fronts apart from one glaring culinary omission. “Where’s the cheese Gromit?” None on an excellent Spag Bog. Sob!

The evening was overcast and drizzling to pouring and any woman who could get hold of an umbrella did so. Our men are tough and waterproof, so they strode through the rain, noses dribbling in a manly and erotic fashion.

From our host’s home, 24 Turner St., Whitfield, we twisted and turned along streets and the canal behind Piccone’s ending up crossing the torrential Salt Water creek on Pease St. Then three little maids lost sight of the pack who may have continued along the bank of the creek or along another higher street in Edge Hill. To their joy Pecker came along in his wagon with the punch and stopped for their refreshment. Pecker said “I put mainly soda water in it. All lemonade is too sweet.” Since the fortified wine is already sweet, some of us think No lemonade, only soda water and perhaps apple juice would be adequate sweetening. Australia now has an epidemic of diabetes and Hashers must watch their diet to keep hashing.

Stroker informed us of milestones in 1968.

1. Christian Barnard performed his first successful heart transplant if 5 (?) extra years of drug filled life is a success.

2. Airbags were invented for the protection of passengers in car. He made some oblique connection between airbags and silicone breasts. Did one invention lead to the other? Why? Do they both explode on impact or when banged?

Pecker deserves an 8/10 for his looping trail allowing slow walkers to catch up, and his delicious plate lickin’ home cooked Bolognese, but we beg you, next time tell us to bring the Parmesan.
