Run 1975—It Rained on Pylon's Parade

A small group of intrepid hashers formed, huddled beneath the minimal shelter offered by the park rotunda, beating back the marauding mosquitoes and doing what they do best – eating, drinking and making merry – was the culminating event following a stroll about the Caravonica and Canopy's Edge area...at least I think that's where we were....I was disorientated to say the least!

It was lovely to see Ms Teepee back in our midst, although we know she and Retard would have preferred to have been off to Ballarat as per plan...

No shirts appeared, Mo-Fo won the raffle, we heard a NZ run report from Madam (in between vetted stories I'm sure, about pick-up lines tested out on her), lots of dubious charges and a healthy, low-fat version of what is traditionally known as KFC for dinner!

Short and sweet this week – just like me!

On-On Less-On

Our new committee, yours truly being the exception of course, bumbled their way through the circle where our twin Hash Cash Mademoiselles took on GM duty and Big Bang eventually got his shite together and organised the down-downs.

- What do you call Kim Kardashian with two brain cells? Pregnant.
- Three Young Boys There are three young boys walking on a beach. They see a hot chick in a skimpy bikini. Two of the friends stop to stare but the other friend runs away. The next day they are walking on the same beach as yesterday. They see the same girl again, now she is topless. Two friends stop to stare but the same friend runs away. The next day they are walking on the same beach as yesterday. They see the same girl again, now is completely naked! Two friends stop to stare but the same friend runs away. The Two friends catch up to the last guy and ask him, "Why are you running away from such a beautiful sight?" He says, "My mother told me when I was a little boy that if a man saw a naked woman, he would turn to stone. I ran away because I felt something getting hard."
- What's the best way to force a man to do situps? Put the remote control between his toes.
- Neurosurgeon A Brain surgeon consults with prospective patient about brain transplant: Surgeon, "There are three brains available for your transplant surgery. Nuclear physicist - $1000; Philosophy professor - $2000; Blonde stripper - $50,000." Patient, "Why is the stripper's brain so expensive?" Surgeon, "Never used."
- Q: Why did the blind blonde cross the road?
A: She was following her seeing-eye chicken.
